ADDRESSING THE SUBSTANCE ABUSE CRISIS:

The Healing House Family Enrichment Center

SUBSTANCE ABUSE IN THE UNITED STATES AND KANSAS CITY

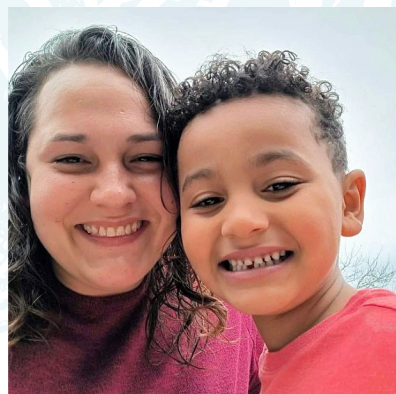

Substance abuse remains a pervasive and growing problem in the United States, with nearly 20 million adults battling substance use disorders annually. Alcohol-related deaths are the third-leading preventable cause of death in the U.S., while drug overdose deaths have skyrocketed in recent years, fueled by the opioid epidemic and synthetic substances like fentanyl. Kansas City reflects these troubling national trends, with overdose deaths rising and a significant portion of the population struggling to access affordable treatment options.

HEALING HOUSE KANSAS CITY'S ROLE

Healing House Kansas City is at the forefront of addressing substance abuse by offering a faith-based, peer-supported recovery model.

To expand these efforts, Healing House is launching a $1.5 million (current estimate) capital campaign to renovate a central facility into the Family Enrichment Center. For the first time, this new center will allow Healing House to provide clinical services to individuals who do not reside in our houses or apartment buildings, extending care to those living in their own homes. This expansion will increase the number of individuals served annually with clinical services, from 335 to 500.
